Our focus at St Aidan's is to develop and promote

authentic, caring,

confident, creative,

and connected women

who value reason,

imagination, truth,

compassion and responsibility.

We uncover, discover and nurture your daughter's unique potential while guiding her through a diverse and dynamic range of opportunities.

At St Aidan's we teach students to be lifelong learners and our community will care for your daughter so that she, in turn, will care for others.

We commit to educating your daughter so that she will always fly upwards.

We are

With the help of teachers, coaches and peers, we find our voice and grow to be comfortable in our skin.

Talents and individuality are celebrated, and we express our values and views in our own way, knowing we will never need to sacrifice self-respect.

In a girls-only environment, we meet challenges head-on and step up to leadership. Consistent, outstanding academic achievement occurs because we are more open, we speak up and we are heard.

Authentic

I have been fortunate to experience strong female role models and witness St Aidan's girls be fearlessly supportive, resilient and determined.

At our school, we learn the importance of empathy. We know care, kindness and respect starts at empathy. We learn that empathy allows for listening and listening leads to understanding. When we truly try to understand others, we genuinely care.

Caring at St Aidan's sets us up for a life of giving back to the community and the life-long desire to make a difference.

Caring

I know that I have it in me to become not only a brave, determined and decisive leader but also one of empathy, understanding and kindness.

At St Aidan's we are encouraged to do whatever and be whoever we want to be.

It is important to us to honour the vision of the Society of the Sacred Advent (SSA) and that means our education encourages us to consider emotional, social, intellectual, spiritual and physical growth.

Thanks to the Society of the Sacred Advent (SSA) values, we have always felt empowered to be the best versions of ourselves. Most of our role models are of the same gender and we know and see the positive effect on how we see ourselves. Our leadership programs promote leaders who enable others and can embrace uncertainty. Competition, a safe place to take risks and the development of resilient behaviours are all part of an education at St Aidan's.

Wellbeing is front and centre; with a focus on how girls learn, we are fortunate to have the time and space to be aspirational, motivated and have a strong work ethic.

“ I have learnt how to be a leader in an environment where I would usually be a follower and I believe this has boosted my confidence in ways I could never have imagined ”

Emily, Year 11

Confident

We are

Learning and teaching at St Aidan's leads us to be outward-looking and future-focused. We are respectful of what has come before us. We buck the trend when it comes to girls and the study of STEM subjects. We have the chance to hone our critical, creative and collaborative skills in wide-ranging curricula, including STEM, design, literature, humanities, enterprise, arts and languages.

As students, we are free to experiment and explore, no matter our age or the subject matter. We are encouraged to follow our ambitions in a supportive, encouraging and playful environment.

At our school, learning is to ask questions, make mistakes, take risks and always try again.

We expect to change the future.

You will be inspired to push yourself and your legacy will be defined by the intention of your actions rather than the expectation of the outcome.

Alice, Year 11

Our community fosters respect, courtesy and kindness. Students are encouraged to connect as individuals to something bigger than themselves and engage as active participants in all opportunities presented to them.

We live in faith guided by Christian values, with our connection to the Sisters of the Society of the Sacred Advent and our focus on living their values day to day. Our strong community connections with local charities, community groups, alumni, parents and staff, allow relationships to thrive, and we flourish in an inclusive and diverse community. We value fostering our connections with each other, to the natural world, our local community and to the global and technological environments.

Connected

“ St Aidan’s has offered me opportunities to meet people who have broadened my life perspective and global experiences in an ever-changing world ”
